1. Applicant's election with traverse of Group I is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that searching all of the claims would not be a serious burden. This is not found persuasive because the particular search strategy for each invention is not the same and, as a whole, would require a significant amount of added searching.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

2. Claims 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 4 and 5, "the heated solvent" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 6 is indefinite in that it is not further limiting of claims 5 (i.e. the solvent has been set forth as having a temperature of 40-100 C, but claim 6 calls for 2-30 C).

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by either one of Perech or Seltzer et al.

Either one of Perech or Seltzer et al discloses heating a tea extract under temperatures as called for in the instant claims wherein said heated extract is then reconstituting same to prepare a tea drink (see examples).

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either one of Seltzer et al or Perech.

The claims further call for the solvent to be heated water or employing water at a certain temperature. The claims also call for the amounts of solvent and tea extract to be used and that the beverage is translucent without visible particles of extract. As for the use of heated water, such is notoriously well known in preparing a tea beverage. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have employed heated water as an art recognized step in preparing a tea beverage. In addition, translucent tea is notoriously well known and would have been further obvious to have attained same by the extract of dilution and/or filtration techniques. As for the amounts involved and degree of heating, determination would have been well within the purview of one skilled in the art, and, absent a showing of unexpected results, it would have been further obvious to have arrived at such values as a matter of preference as to the desired degree of heat or desired taste strength in the final beverage product.
